Mentoring Public Health Laboratory Fellows & Interns

APHL is always seeking mentors to support the Public Health Laboratory Fellowship and Internship Programs! Fellows and interns are matched with experienced mentors in host laboratories across the United States.

Mentorship Benefits
- Enhance their own communication, leadership and training skills
- Facilitate host laboratory project work and goals
- Expand their own professional networks
- Learn best practices from other mentors
- Rewarded by helping educate the next generation of public health laboratory scientists!
- Request up to $10,000 from APHL per fellowship project per fellowship term to assist with fellowship project!

Mentorship Functions
- Provide a perspective on public health laboratory science careers for the next generation
- Guide the fellow or intern in their laboratory responsibilities and project work
- Share feedback on performance and goals
- Provide technical guidance and professional development support
- Inspire a passion for laboratory science and a desire to serve the community
- Regularly meet with fellow or intern to monitor status and provide direction
